

Ken Matesz has been building masonry heaters for more than 15 years. These are pictures of a few of the custom projects he has done over the last several years. Ken enjoys designing "from scratch" - custom designing a heater for a specific space, like the heaters shown here. In this way, virtually any size, shape or material can be used. The picture below is a concept drawing for a proposed project. Ken uses AutoCad to produce photo-realistic images so everyone can see what the finished product will be.
